Fear and believing we are limited can prevent us from seeing our potential. Christopher's story challenges our mindset and helps us to rethink our mission.

Despite the obstacles we all face, we can achieve more. How can we do that? What are the keys to wanting and being more?

Audiences will become more aware of ability, rather than disability. They will witness friendship, sacrifice and problem-solving. Additionally, there will be a greater understanding of how collaboration and community changes outcomes. Christopher's life is that example.

"Mr. Criswell, I just wanted to take a moment and thank you for bringing in Christopher Duffley to speak to us and remind us why we chose education. In the day in and day out, it's often easy to lose sight of our vision and our true purpose. It is always good to be reminded of the difference we can make in someone's life. "
